SCOTT-CARVER

A 10-year Plan to End Homelessness in Scott & Carver Communities

January 14th, 2010

Dear Community Stake Holders:

Over the past ten months, the Heading Home Scott-Carver Workgroup has worked on a plan to address and end homelessness in both counties. This comprehensive plan has five broad goals, twenty-two strategies and fifty-eight concrete action steps that we feel will help move our community and its resources from managing homelessness in our community to ending it.

Our communities have seen an increase of needs for those experiencing homelessness while our safety net and housing systems have lagged behind in meeting these needs.

Presently, in the United States, over 250 plans to end homelessness have been developed. These plans help communities assess current and emerging trends, evaluate and improve their systems and identify and retain increased funding support for homeless prevention and housing efforts.

In the State of Minnesota, most regions have created a Heading Home Plan, with only two other counties besides Scott-Carver not having a plan in place. Copies of all completed Heading Home Plans in Minnesota can be accessed at <http://headinghomeminnesota.org/>.

Moving forward, we recognize the need for a significant investment of time, energy, and resources from community members and organizations within Scott and Carver communities to ensure that we are able to reach the goals stated in this plan. Regardless of skill or status, all community members can have a role in moving this plan forward. We ask for you to join us in this effort and look forward to working together to end homelessness in our community.

Sincerely,

The Heading Home Scott-Carver Committee

Heading Home Scott-Carver

Introduction

Scott and Carver Counties are uniquely located in the seven county Twin Cities metro area. Like many suburban communities we are seeing steady increases in traditionally urban issues (need for emergency shelter, services, long-term supports), At the same time, our community has far fewer resources (housing and service providers, affordable housing stock) than other communities (urban and suburban) to address these needs. Both counties are growing rapidly, but the number of service providers and opportunities for emergency shelter and affordable housing are not keeping pace.

Mission

Prevent and end homelessness in Scott and Carver Counties by developing local housing and supportive services that combine public and private resources.

Scott and Carver counties have a long established relationship in working for affordable housing beginning with the development of the Scott-Carver Housing Coalition in 1991. Through active participation and coordination of many stakeholders the Housing Coalition has taken on the work of Continuum of Care planning and Family Homeless Prevention and Assistance planning, among other regional housing and homeless agendas.

Beginning in 2000 there was an increasing awareness and concern for the number of homeless individuals and families in Scott and Carver counties as evidenced by the low numbers of homeless counted in the Wilder Survey. In fact, service providers and faith communities had been assisting a sharply increasing number of individuals and families experiencing homelessness than the survey indicated. In that ensuing time, individual service providers were able to obtain sporadic funding for housing and homeless assistance programming.

While preparing for the funding application for Family Homeless Prevention and Assistance Program (FHPAP) in 2008, a community-wide group of participants determined that Scott and Carver counties were in a position to prepare a Plan to End Homelessness. Heading Home Scott-Carver was organized in an effort to better access and coordinate existing and future resources for those experiencing homelessness. The coalition has since aligned itself with other regions to seek out increased funding for homeless prevention and assistance and joined the efforts of over 250 regions/cities nationwide in making a plan to end homelessness.

Vision

Our vision is that by the year 2020, all people facing homelessness in Scott and Carver Counties will have access to safe, decent and affordable housing and the supports and resources to sustain it.

Our plan to end homelessness will benefit from Scott and Carver being small suburban counties. We believe our counties' size and location provide unique opportunities for creating a prevention and assistance network that will be easily accessible, client-driven, and collaborative in nature. We believe our smaller size gives us an advantage of creating prevention strategies that can adjust and mold to the individual needs of households in our community who are experiencing a housing crisis or are temporarily homeless. We also benefit from the collaborative support we are able to draw from the many providers, advocates, and government agency partners within the larger metro community.

Executive Summary of Plan Goals and Recommendations

Located in the southwest suburban area of the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul Minnesota, the counties of Scott and Carver are made up of small cities, rural towns and agricultural regions. This region also includes the Mdewakanton Sioux Community. US Census figures from 2008 estimate the combined population is 218,980 people. There are many factors shared by both counties such as: community size, household income, industry, and an expansion in the building of single family homes creating bedroom communities, the recent completion of large interstate highways and rapidly increasing home foreclosure rates.

On any given day, it is estimated that there are approximately 31 adults and 32 children experiencing homelessness in Scott and Carver counties.

While there are no emergency shelter facilities in either county, some of these people are fortunate to have support from local social service providers or concerned faith communities; most are less fortunate and end up “living” in cars, tents, and in places not meant for human occupancy. The most significant experience for our residents experiencing homelessness is “couch hopping”¹. Many other households are facing impending homelessness in the form of eviction, mortgage foreclosure or being forced to leave a family home.

The rates for eviction and foreclosure have increased in both counties. According to the Minnesota Home Ownership Center’s Semi-Annual Report 2009, out of a total of 87 counties in the state of Minnesota, Scott County ranked 7th and Carver County, 14th for total foreclosures for the first two quarters of 2009. The foreclosure rates for Scott and Carver counties were at .48 and .28 respectively. The average foreclosure rate in the Twin Cities Metro Area during the same time period was at .38.

The communities of Scott and Carver are seeking to expand their response to the ravages of homelessness by increasing homelessness prevention resources to assist homeowners to remain in their homes. In addition, both counties are seeking to limit the harm of homelessness by rapidly re-housing people. These approaches will move our community from reacting-to-and-managing homelessness to our final goal of ending homelessness. This broad-based effort is our ten year plan known as Heading Home Scott-Carver.

Heading Home Scott-Carver has been created in the belief that no person—man, woman, or child should have to sleep in a car, in the woods, under a bridge, in an abandoned building or in a place not meant for human habitation. This plan recognizes housing as a basic human right and ending homelessness as an achievable goal in the next ten years. Heading Home Scott-Carver serves as a blueprint and a call to action for these two suburban and rural counties.

This report contains five broad goals, 22 strategies, and 58 concrete action steps. Successful implementation of our Ten-Year Plan will prevent homelessness whenever possible, rapidly re-house individuals and families and provide stable, affordable housing for men, women and children through providing housing with support services for those in need.

Definition of Homelessness

For the purposes of this plan we will be using the following definition of homelessness: “A person staying in a place not meant for human habitation, a person in temporary shelter or housing, and persons doubled up.”

A person experiencing long-term homelessness will be defined as: “Those people who have been homeless three times in the last four years or continually homeless for the last year.”

¹ Couch hopping is the term used to describe people doubling up in apartments/homes, often moving from place to place or couch to couch due to the lack of stable housing.

Goal # 1: Prevent Households from Experiencing Homelessness

Strategies:

- Increase access to public & private resources
- Ensure housing stability for people leaving public institutions
- Create a formal tracking & rapid re-housing process for folks being sheltered in Minneapolis & St Paul
- Provide deeper and longer assistance and services for youth and young adults
- Increase educational opportunities to low-income households (life skills, renters' rights, etc.)

Goal # 2: Increase Housing Opportunities for Homeless and Low-Income Households in Scott and Carver

Strategies:

- Create 120 new affordable housing rental units in Carver County
- Create 180 new affordable housing rental units in Scott County
- Create 50 new supportive housing opportunities in Carver County and 50 new supportive housing opportunities in Scott County
- Create 35 new rental assistance subsidies without services in Carver County
- Create 45 new rental assistance subsidies without services in Scott County

Goal # 3: Provide Coordinated Outreach

Strategies:

- Create emergency shelter beds for homeless families and individuals in our community
- Increase staffing for outreach to homeless youth and adults
- Improve communication network with homeless school liaisons
- Enhance outreach/services provided to landlords
- Enhance outreach/services provided to renters

Goal # 4: Improve Service Delivery

Strategies:

- Increase services funding from local, state and federal resources
- Increase access to harm reduction supportive housing
- Increase number of providers serving homeless households in Scott and Carver counties
- Utilize the faith community to enhance the support provided to families in need in the community

Goal #5: Increase Community Awareness and Involvement in Ending Homelessness

Strategies:

- Develop programs that will increase awareness and involvement from community members
- Expand and organize partnerships across the community
- Develop a system to track and evaluate progress on Heading Home Scott-Carver Plan

Planning Process

In January of 2009 a group of concerned persons assembled to begin the work of Heading Home Scott-Carver. This group included county veteran service officers, staff of community action agencies, county social service staff, members of the faith communities, state and regional representatives, youth workers, staff from the local housing authorities and an individual recently housed after being homeless for many months. The development of the plan proceeded with both small and large group work. The involvement of elected officials and other concerned local citizens was accomplished by sending regular communication via email of meeting minutes and the formation of the plan as it was drafted.

Presentations to the highest elected officials and government managers in each county were completed in November 2009. Focus groups were conducted in November 2009 seeking feedback for any plan revision and support for implementation of the plan for the beginning of January 2010.

The following principles guided our work:

Guiding Principles

- All people deserve safe, decent, and affordable housing.
- People who are homeless deserve housing options.
- Homelessness costs more than housing.
- Collecting and presenting data is important.
- There is a critical relationship between housing and services: that without housing, services, and supports cannot be effective, and without services and support, housing doesn't last.
- Prevention is a key component of the solution.
- Community-wide involvement is required.
- Ending homelessness is attainable.

Homelessness in Scott and Carver Counties

In the United States, poverty and homelessness has largely been assumed to be an “urban” issue. The images of urban homelessness have been often repeated in media reports and films—cardboard box make-shift camps, rows of mats on the floor of a crowded shelter, shopping carts full of aluminum cans, long lines at a soup kitchen. Far less frequently does one think homelessness might exist in suburban and rural communities; right here in our own back yard.

To be sure, homelessness looks different in our community than in downtown Minneapolis. Instead of waiting in line to get in a shelter, families in our community are sleeping in their cars, staying in a motel with the support of a local church, camping, doubling up in a friend or relative’s place, or leaving their community to go to Minneapolis where they can find the shelter and services that are lacking in our community.

The fact remains that Scott and Carver counties have seen a steady increase over the past decade of families, unaccompanied youth, and adults without children who are experiencing housing instability and homelessness. Without a concerted effort to recognize and develop new strategies to address these housing needs, the recent trends of increased homelessness will not go away. It is time for our community to identify the existing needs and gaps, and develop strategies to change these trends.

People don't think of homelessness as a suburban phenomenon. They associate it with something that happens in central cities. But the truth is that we do have people living in their cars or in substandard mobile homes.

--New York Times May 8th 2002

Current Needs in Scott and Carver Counties

There are four studies that we have used to provide recent information about the trends of households experiencing homelessness and housing instability in our communities. These studies include the Wilder Research Overview of Homelessness in Minnesota 2006 and the Maxfield Housing Study, commissioned by both housing authorities to examine the future needs of housing for both counties. In addition, in preparation for Heading Home Scott-Carver, the Scott-Carver Housing Coalition conducted two surveys to assess the current needs/trends within our community; the HUD Point in Time Count (1/09) and the Plan to End Homelessness Survey (3/09).

The suburban homeless are largely hidden. They're more apt to sleep in cars or double up with friends than push grocery carts downtown. And the few existing programs to help them are severely limited.

experiencing homelessness and housing instability in our communities. These studies include the Wilder Research Overview of Homelessness in Minnesota 2006 and the Maxfield Housing Study, commissioned by both housing authorities to examine the future needs of housing for both counties. In addition, in

Wilder Research Overview of Homelessness in Minnesota (Oct 26th, 2006) Every three years since 1991, Wilder Research has conducted a statewide survey of persons who are homeless to better understand the causes, circumstances and effects of homelessness, and to promote efforts toward permanent, affordable housing for all Minnesotans. The Wilder survey is one of the most comprehensive and respected surveys across the country. On this single day (October 26th, 2006) more than 950 volunteers around the state conducted face-to-face interviews with some 2,500 people in emergency shelters, transitional housing programs, and battered women’s shelters. In addition, nearly 1,200 homeless people not in shelters were interviewed.²

On this one day, 62 adults and unaccompanied youth and 32 children in families were identified to be currently homeless, residing in transitional housing, or having last had stable housing in Scott or Carver counties. It should be noted that data was not collected for this survey from Southern Valley Alliance (which provides 12 beds for victims of domestic abuse) and Safehaven for Youth (which provides outreach and transitional housing). Thus, as daunting as it may be to believe that 94 people in our community lacked safe, permanent housing on this day, we believe this is a significant undercount of the total number of people in need on any given day.

Maxfield Study³ In March of 2007, the Carver County Community Development Agency completed a comprehensive housing needs assessment for the period of 2005 through 2030. Likewise, in June 2006 the Scott County Community Development Agency completed a similar study that projects housing demand for that county through 2015.

Some key findings from the Maxfield studies:

- Through 2015, Carver County is projected to need an estimated 2,570 rental units and Scott County, 2,930 respectively.
- Of the total of projected units for each county, senior housing represents a considerable portion of the housing demand. For Carver County, 1,510 senior units will be needed and for Scott County, 1,355 units.
- In both counties, about 60% of the counties market-rate units had rents below the Section 8 payment standard and considered affordable for low to moderate income families.

³ Maxfield Research, Inc., 615 First Avenue NE, Suite 400, Minneapolis, MN 55413

- For Carver County, in 2006 there were 570 units that were identified as affordable units, meaning they are restricted to households with low to moderate incomes. In Scott County during the same time period, there were 418 units identified as meeting the affordable definition.
- Most of the units listed in the study as affordable in both counties were developed by the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit (LIHTC) program and restricted to households with incomes below 60% of Area Median Income⁴ (AMI). In 2007, these income limits were as follows:

1 Person	$29,350
2 Person	$33,550
3 Person	$37,750
4 Person	$41,950

HUD Point in Time (1/09) On January 28, 2009 the Scott-Carver Housing Collaborative conducted a point in time study which is required biennially by the Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD). This survey sought to determine the number of people experiencing homelessness in Scott and Carver counties for this one night in January.

We found the sheer number of homelessness on this point in time to be shocking. A good cross section of agencies, churches, schools and police took part in this study. Of the 945 persons surveyed, 61% reported that they were unable to access affordable housing. Nine percent of those surveyed spent the night in cars, parks or abandoned buildings. One hundred and seventeen faced eviction and 14% were couch hopping. Sixty four percent of these clients met the definition of long-term homelessness by experiencing four episodes of homelessness in the past year. The number one need identified for persons experiencing housing instability and persons experiencing homelessness was access to affordable housing. The number of providers and collaborative partners in this study gave ample evidence to the growing need within these two communities for programs that address homelessness.

Plan to End Homelessness Survey (3/09) The Scott-Carver Housing Collaborative conducted a comprehensive survey in March 2009 to determine the needs and trends of households in our community experiencing homelessness and housing instability. This survey gained the participation of a variety of community stakeholders including: transitional and permanent supportive housing providers, domestic violence provider, youth provider, faith community, local schools, Veterans Services Officers, CDA’s, the CAP agency, police, and both counties. In total, the survey identified the following in the past year (1/1/08-12/31/08):

- Over 1000 households were identified who met the State of Minnesota’s definition of homelessness (duplicated)

Other Pertinent Information.

Affordable Housing. The factors precipitating homelessness and housing instability are varied. Nationally, the primary factor linked to homelessness is a lack of affordable and available housing. Recent data indicates housing costs for Minnesotans increased significantly between 2002 and 2007. During this time period, the number of homeowners paying more than half of their income for housing increased from 1 in 18 mortgage holders to 1 in 9 mortgage holders. Rental households were not exempt from an increased housing burden. In 2007 there were 510,000 renting households in Minnesota. Of this population, 1 in 5 paid more than half of their income for housing. As confirmed locally, job loss, a low working wage or disability income coupled with a high housing cost burden, and low levels of affordable housing stock explain the struggles citizens have in attaining and being able to maintain stable housing. These factors are also reflected in the high percentage rate of foreclosures in the Scott and Carver area.

The need for affordable housing is growing. The federal housing assistance authority budget has declined nearly 50% since its peak in 1978. At the same time, the very low income renter population has grown not only due to a growing population in general, but also due to stagnating or declining wages and benefits. According to the National Low Income Housing Coalition, very low income renters paying half or more of their income or living in severely substandard housing has grown from 4 million households in 1978 to 6 million in 2005.

Defining Housing Affordability
 The Federal guideline for housing affordability is a housing cost that does not exceed 30% of a household's gross income. Household costs considered in this guideline usually include taxes, insurance, and utility costs. When the monthly housing cost exceeds 30% of income, the household experiences a cost burden. Cost burdened households are at increased risk of housing loss and inability to meet other life needs.

An ongoing strong demand exists for affordable/subsidized rental housing in Carver and Scott Counties. Both CDA's have extremely long waiting lists for the limited number of vouchers available thru the federal Section 8 housing program. Wait periods have been projected to be as long as ten years. Scott County has a 1.4% vacancy rate among project based rental developments. This means unless a person is already on the waiting list, they will not be able to attain a unit. The Scott County Maxfield study of 2006 indicated the need for an additional 680 subsidized/affordable units by 2010. Carver County's Maxfield study of 2007 indicated a need for an additional 1000 units by 2015.

In addition to the shortage of affordable housing stock, both counties are experiencing a rental market with high rents. The HUD published Fair Market Rent Rates (FMR) for the Minneapolis/St Paul metro area are $719.00 for a one bedroom apartment and $873.00 for a two bedroom unit. County payment standards are higher due to the high housing costs in the bi-county area. The payment standards are $769 for a one bedroom and $933 for a two bedroom unit for Scott County and $790 and $960 for Carver County respectively.

In order to afford a one bedroom unit according to affordability guidelines, a household would need to make $14.90 per hour or $31,000 per year. With a minimum wage of $6.55, a single person would need to work 98.5 hours per week, 52 weeks a year to afford a one bedroom unit. In order to afford a two bedroom unit, a household would need to make $17.79 per hour or $37,000 per year. Disabled persons who are unable to engage in "substantial gainful activity" receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) have an even more difficult challenge in maintaining housing. With a monthly income of $668.00, or $8,016.00 annually, this population is almost 30% below the 2008 federal poverty guideline of $10,400 for an individual. On average, this population would need to pay close to 115% of their income to rent a one bedroom unit. Needless to say, our most vulnerable populations are those most at risk for homelessness. In 2008 a national survey found that people with mental illness represented 26% of the homeless population, 13% were people with physical disabilities, and 13 % were veterans. These populations alone represent 52% of the homeless population. Youth are a growing population among the homeless due to their low income and lack of preparation for independent living.

Foreclosure. More and more Minnesota homeowners face the possibility of losing their homes. According to a HousingLink report, "during the last quarter of 2008, 54,834 homeowners had missed one or more payments and 15% of the subprime mortgages and 6% of all mortgages in the state were at least 30 days overdue, but not yet in foreclosure." Forecasters predict continuing high numbers of mortgage foreclosure. The Carver County CDA and Scott County CDA are the local authorities to assist with mortgage foreclosure assistance. They report 370 Carver County Sheriff Sales occurred during 2009 and an astounding 801 Sheriff Sales for Scott County during the same period. Foreclosure cases (counseling services) in Carver County for 2009 was numbered at 1186.

It is clear from this data that homelessness and housing instability needs are increasing in Scott and Carver counties despite an increasing awareness and commitment to end homelessness by community stakeholders.

Existing Resources

Community partnerships and the private sector have worked vigorously to address housing instability and homelessness in Scott and Carver counties. Unfortunately, with limited funds, these gaps and prevention remain a challenge as we are constantly looking for new funding to provide more resources.

While researching existing housing resources, two things are clear:

- Our community is already heavily invested in serving persons who lack stable housing. We are already investing money and resources into these issues. It is less clear as to whether our current investments are best targeted to produce desired outcomes. In creating this plan, our workgroup identified the need to build upon our current investments that are proving successful (homelessness prevention, supportive housing), and shift away from the investments that are not intended to provide housing stability (motel stays, etc.).
- Current resources do not address the shelter and housing needs of many individuals and families in our community. We do not have an adequate capacity to provide shelter to people in crisis, nor adequate affordable and supportive housing to provide long-term solutions for these households. Stringent eligibility criteria and lengthy waiting lists are often the by-product of insufficient resources. We know that our homeless and housing issues look different in rural and suburban areas and our resources need to reflect this. We need to work collaboratively to centralize services within our counties to address the needs of our community members. Increased funding and community buy-in are necessary solutions.

The following list provides some current resources in our counties. All are supported by a combination of private, public and faith-based funding.

Goal #1: Prevent Households from Experiencing Homelessness

Everyday in our community many families, singles adults, and youth are facing personal crises or financial challenges that have them teetering on the edge of homelessness. Most of these households will find friends, family, or other supports to help them work through their financial/personal challenges without falling into homelessness. However, too many do not find the support they need and end up homeless, leading to substantial trauma for children and youth, and unnecessary costs which will eventually be required to stabilize many of these households.

Homelessness prevention is the cornerstone of Heading Home Scott-Carver. The success of all other goals and activities in this Plan is predicated upon our ability to “close the front door” on homelessness and help families stay in their current housing. It is well documented that the costs of preventing homelessness are far less than the costs incurred assisting a family after they have become homeless. Focusing our energy on homelessness prevention is not only the right thing; it is the smart thing to do.

Goal #2: Increase Housing Opportunities for Homeless & Low-Income Households in Scott and Carver

While preventing homelessness is cost effective it is not always feasible or advisable—as in the case of domestic violence. To truly end homelessness a community must develop a full continuum of housing. This continuum must include affordable housing as its foundation. Affordable housing can be created in a variety of ways—from increasing the number of rental assistance vouchers making rent affordable to an increase in the construction of affordable housing units. Most communities take a multi-pronged approach: increasing the number of rental subsidies to maximize private, market rate housing; and building new affordable housing. Finally, permanent supportive housing combines affordability and support services with the goal of ending the cycle of homelessness for persons with disabilities and barriers to housing. Permanent supportive housing can be site-based, which is often accomplished with new construction or a scattered site approach, using rental vouchers in private, market rate housing. Both models are effective. While permanent supportive housing is a more expensive option, it is far less expensive than the alternative of jail, treatment facilities, foster care and repeated hospitalizations.

Goal #3: Provide Coordinated Outreach

Like most communities, the primary methods of outreach to people experiencing homelessness in Scott and Carver counties are corrections officers and county social workers. Both local and national data show that addressing street homelessness through a criminal justice response is both costly and ineffective. In our suburban counties with widely dispersed populations, connecting to people experiencing homelessness and housing crises is incredibly difficult. Centralized points of contact are hard to access because they are so few in number, there is little community awareness of existing resources, people lack reliable transportation to get to the limited locations, and nonprofit and county staffs do not have adequate resources to go into the community and meet people to connect them with resources. More effective and coordinated outreach in Scott and Carver counties would go far in bringing our community closer to ending homelessness.

Strategies:

- Create emergency shelter beds for homeless families and individuals in our community
- Increase staffing for outreach to homeless youth and adults
- Improve communication network with homeless school liaisons
- Enhance outreach/services provided to landlords
- Enhance outreach/services provided to renters

Goal #4: Improve Service Delivery

The state of Minnesota, Scott and Carver counties have increased public awareness of the issue of homelessness in our suburban community; still, significant improvements in both the coordination and delivery of services are necessary as we work toward eliminating homelessness. The following recommendations will improve the quantity and quality of collaboration and available services for our community members in need.

Strategies:

- Increase services funding from local, state and federal resources
- Increase access to harm reduction supportive housing
- Increase number of providers serving homeless households in Scott and Carver counties
- Utilize the faith community to enhance the support provided to families in need in the community

Goal #5: Increase Community Awareness and Involvement in Ending Homelessness

It is difficult for many suburban/rural communities to believe that homelessness exists and has become a serious problem. In rural areas homelessness looks somewhat different because the public doesn't see pan-handling or soup lines, people are not sleeping on park benches or in cardboard boxes, and very few are sleeping under bridges or on the river banks. Homelessness is not as visible in suburban/rural counties, like Scott and Carver.

Staff and volunteers who work with the homeless see the effects of homelessness everyday. People are homeless for a variety of reasons: some of the homeless here have jobs, many have lost jobs due to lay off's, some live in homeless shelters, some have left abusive situations, some have been discharged from a correctional or human service facility, many of the homeless are children. Homelessness can occur for a number of reasons, including financial crisis, lack of affordable housing, or a family or personal crisis. Other issues such as age, mental and/or physical illness or disability, domestic violence, chemical dependency and discrimination; all have a direct impact on people's ability to secure and retain housing. Until you are actively involved in helping someone or encounter a person who is having housing difficulties, the problem of homelessness in the community may not exist for many people. Defining the problem and educating the community are important steps in providing the means and measures to end homelessness in Scott and Carver Counties. The first step is to identify and understand the problem.

Appendix A: Glossary⁶

Affordable housing: Housing for which the occupant is paying no more than 30 percent of his or her income for gross housing costs, including utilities. For the purposes of this plan, “affordable housing” is further defined as housing that is partially or fully subsidized by a governmental agency OR housing that is affordable at 30% of the area median income⁷.

Family: At least one adult with custody or guardianship of at least one dependent child.

Homelessness: Based on the definition established by the U.S. Congress in the McKinney-Vento legislation, someone is homeless if they (1) lack a fixed, regular and adequate nighttime residence; or (2) has a primary nighttime residence that is a supervised, publicly or privately operated temporary living accommodation, including shelters, transitional housing, and battered women’s shelters or (3) has a nighttime residence in any place not meant for human habitation, such as under bridges or in cars. For children and youth, this definition is extended to also include children and youth under 18 who are (1) sharing the housing of other persons due to loss of housing, economic hardship, or a similar reason (sometimes referred to as “doubled-up”); or (2) living in motels, hotels, trailer parks, or (3) camping grounds due to lack of alternative adequate accommodations; abandoned in hospitals; or awaiting foster care placement.

Housing opportunities: Refers to both the production of new units and access to units in the existing market.

Long-term homelessness: Lacking a permanent place to live continuously for a year or more or at least four times in the last three years.

MFIP: The Minnesota Family Investment Program, or MFIP, is the state’s welfare reform program for low-income families with children. MFIP helps families move to work and includes both cash and food assistance.

Permanent supportive housing: Supportive housing is affordable housing linked with services that help people live more stable, productive lives. It can be either project-based or scattered-site housing. It is permanent because it does not limit the tenant’s stay; rather, the individual household decides when to leave. (Corporation for Supportive Housing)

Single adult: An individual age 22 or older who does not have any children or currently does not have custody of their children.

TBR: Tenant-based rental assistance programs provide households with portable vouchers they can use to access existing housing units.

Transitional Housing: Time-limited supportive housing designed to help those experiencing homelessness to obtain and maintain long term housing. Programs serve participants for a minimum of 30 days and agree to provide a private space with a locked door, housing subsidies, and access to services. Participants agree to comply with program rules and expectations which at minimum include an initial assessment, the development of a service plan, and work on plan goals which always includes the goal of transitioning to housing that is not time limited.

Youth/Transitional Youth: An individual and/or household this is age 22 or younger and unaccompanied by an adult. Homeless youth are addressed separately from adults as they usually become homeless for different reasons, face different issues once they become homeless, and require different programs and services.

Appendix 2: The Rationale for Supportive Housing⁸

Across the country and here in Minnesota, supportive housing is proving to be a sound, long-term solution for housing and helping people who have experienced long-term homelessness.

Numerous studies clearly demonstrate that supportive housing is, fundamentally:

- An effective intervention that leads to better outcomes for residents
- An efficient investment of scarce public and private money
- An effective tool for improving communities

Supportive housing has been extremely successful in helping people who face the most complex challenges—individuals and families who are not only homeless, but who also have very low incomes and serious, persistent issues that may include substance use, mental illness, and chronic health conditions—to live more stable, productive lives.

Resident Outcomes

Thousands of people who languished on the streets and in shelters for years are now in supportive housing and improving their lives. According to a number of recent studies, people who have moved from the streets into supportive housing have experienced remarkable results, including:

- Increased housing stability: Once in supportive housing, many studies suggest that upwards of 80% of them remain housed after one year.
- Positive impacts on health: Studies show decreases of more than 50% in tenants' emergency room visits and hospital inpatient days; and decreases in tenants' use of emergency detoxification services by more than 80%.
- Positive impacts on employment: Studies indicate increases of 50% in earned income and 40% in the rate of participant employment when employment services are provided in supportive housing.
- Positive impacts on treating mental illness: In one study, 83% of people with mental illness provided with supportive housing remained housed a year later, and experienced a decrease in symptoms of schizophrenia and depression.
- Reducing or ending substance use: A recent study of people leaving chemical dependency treatment programs found that 57% of those living independently remained sober; 56% of those living in a halfway house remained sober; while 90% of those living in supportive housing remained sober.

Efficient Use of Scarce Resources

In addition to providing better outcomes for people, supportive housing is also proven to be an effective and efficient use of scarce public resources. A growing body of evidence is demonstrating the success and cost effectiveness of supportive housing. Among the findings:

Providing ongoing public services for people with mental illness who are involved in the criminal justice system often costs Ramsey County more than $100,000 a year per person.

A recent article in the Saint Paul Pioneer Press examining low-level crime offenders with mental illness, and the costs related to serving them, found some startling results.²⁶ According to Ramsey County, the cost of servicing a single individual meeting the criteria for mental health court includes a wide array of services, including but not limited to:

Service Cost

Average of 8 emergency rooms visits $19,200

5 months in a regional treatment center $69,000

Police involvement $6,750

Mental health case management $9,500

Adult Detention Center $3,500

Providing supportive housing is often no more expensive, and frequently cheaper than many alternatives.

According to the “Cost of Serving Homeless Individuals in Nine Cities” study of homeless single adult completed by the Lewin Group in November of 2004, providing supportive housing is a less expensive alternative than other services accessed by people experiencing long-term homelessness. Outlined below is a summary of the cost per day in the Cities of Columbus and Seattle.

Columbus Seattle

Supportive housing $30.48 Supportive Housing $26.00

Jail $70.00 Jail $87.67

Prison $59.34 Prison $95.51

Mental hospital $451.00 Mental hospital $555.00

In addition, a study conducted by the University of Pennsylvania Center for Mental Health Policy and Services tracked 4,679 homeless people with psychiatric disabilities who were placed into 3,615 units of supportive housing in New York City.²⁸ The study compared the costs of serving these individuals while homeless to the costs of providing supportive housing and found that:

- Including the cost of supportive housing, it costs the public only $1,908 more a year to provide service-enriched housing to a person with mentally illness than it does to allow him or her to remain homeless.
- Participants used an average of $40,449 in publicly funded services over the course of year while homeless. Once placed into supportive housing, participants reduced their use of publicly funded services by an average of $12,145 per year.
- Accounting for the natural turnover that occurs as some of the residents move out of service-enriched housing, these service reduction savings translate into $16,282 per year for each unit of housing constructed.

Supportive housing leads to significant reductions in the utilization of crisis services, including detox facilities by single adults.

In 1998, Hennepin County issued reports on the Glenwood Residence and Anishinabe Wakiagun supportive housing in Minneapolis that serve formerly homeless men and women with late-stage alcoholism. These studies found that:

- Average detox admissions for residents with a prior detox history decreased from 8.0 to 2.4 annually for Glenwood residents, and from 18.0 to 2.5 annually for Anishinabe Wakiagun residents, resulting in an estimated annual savings of between $2,086 and $5,012 per tenant.
- The annual cost savings in detox use alone covers 24% of the Glenwood’s annual operating costs.

- The annual number of criminal bookings for residents decreased 29% per year, and the average number of days spent in the Adult Detention Center per year dropped by 69%.

Supportive housing for families significantly reduces their reliance on other costly public systems, including chemical dependency services and foster care.

In 2002, Hennepin County began an evaluation of 43 families living in two supportive housing programs to determine whether supportive housing reduces county-funded crisis services in child protection, out-of-home placements and substance abuse treatment.³⁰ The study looked at County crisis service expenses six months before and six months after families moved into supportive housing. This evaluation found that:

- Crisis costs declined by an average of $6,200.
- Although County spending remained about the same, the amount spent on crisis services decreased from 88% to 22%.
- There was a significant reduction in costs associated with chemical health treatment.
- Children spent fewer days in foster care.
